

Life Science Leaders Discuss Future of Drug Development at Medidata NEXT London

April 24, 2018

Novartis to present on digital transformation in clinical research

LONDON--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Apr. 24, 2018-- Medidata (NASDAQ: MDSO) is hosting the final European NEXT conference in London this week, with executives presenting from Novartis, Aparito, and the global life sciences community. The event will feature discussions on the EU's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), precision medicine, and how digital innovation is enabling the future of clinical trials. Register now to attend Medidata NEXT London April 25-26 at Hilton London Bankside.

Industry thought leaders and Medidata executives will lead event sessions, including:

- Achim Plueckebaum, Novartis Global Head of Drug Development IT: will present on the transformation of drug development across the spectrum of clinical research to how doctors care for patients.
- Elin Haf Davies, Aparito founder and CEO: part of the first all female crew to row across the Indian Ocean, Davies will discuss how she combined a career in pediatric health and passion for extreme adventure to help children battling rare genetic diseases.
- Glen de Vries, Medidata co-founder and president, and Christian Hebenstreit, senior vice president for EMEA: will be joined onstage by customers and partners presenting how the Medidata Clinical Cloud® is unifying the science and operations of clinical trials.

"We look forward to hosting members of our customer and partner community at Medidata NEXT London," said Glen de Vries, co-founder and president of Medidata. "I'm excited to discuss how breakthroughs in technology are fueling new opportunities in clinical research."

The event will also feature the 3rd Annual Medidata NEXT Hackathon, MediHack. Customers, partners, and developers will come together to collaborate and work with Medidata technology experts in a workshop environment.
